CONTEXT

Unemployment, particularly among Tunisia’s educated youth, remains a major challenge. Currently, in the governorates of Centre, Southern and Northern Tunisia, around 40 per cent of young graduates are unable to find work. This situation is attributed to a range of factors, including the public sector’s limited capacity to employ more young men and women, a lack of diversity in the private sector, and a mismatch of skills required by the private sector and those offered by graduates.

STRATEGY

In January 2017, the United Nations Industrial Development Organization (UNIDO), the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID), the Italian Development Cooperation and the HP Foundation officially launched the second phase of UNIDO’s youth employment project branded “Mashrou3i” (“My project” in Arabic), which aims to create more than 6,000 jobs for young people in Tunisia in the next five years.

The second phase of the project signals the continuation of a successful public-private partnership that has already helped to create more than 1,250 jobs, including over 200 start-up businesses in the governorates of Gafsa, Kairouan, Kasserine, Kebili, Kef, Medenine, Sidi Bouzid and Tataouine since 2013. Mashrou3i Phase II will expand the programme to fourteen vulnerable governorates of Tunisia: Beja, Gafsa, Gabès, Jendouba, Kairouan, Kasserine, Kef, Kébili, Medenine, Sidi Bouzid, Siliana, Tataouine, Tozeur and Zaghouan and aims to reach more than 25,000 aspiring and existing entrepreneurs.

During the second phase, the Mashrou3i project will invest USD 14 million to provide direct support to aspiring and existing entrepreneurs through training courses, business coaching and technical assistance. It will also help enhance the knowledge and capacity of local business support and higher educational institutions.

The project combines UNIDO’s on the ground experience supporting beneficiaries in the creation and growth of small businesses, its working relationships with Tunisian partner organizations and leverages The HP Foundation’s Learning Initiative for Entrepreneurs (HP LIFE) programme, which provides free, online courses in business, IT and entrepreneurship skills.
